State Rejects County's 5-Year-Plan for Route 30 A

SWORD LASHES 'HI-JACKING' FOR ROAD CASH

Resolution Opposing State Requests for Help Passed by North Central Group.

The state highway department today had turned down the county commissioners' five-year plan for financing the proposed $600,000 grade elimination project on route 30-N west of Mansfield, leaving the county only three days to make a new proposal.

Meanwhile, a resolution introduced by County Engineer Howard C. Sword protesting the diversion of county road funds to state projects such as the route 30-N grade elimination was passed by the North Central Ohio Association of Commissioners, Engineers and Auditors at a meeting in Ashland.

Sword's resolution said the counties were being "hijacked" into helping to finance state construction jobs outside villages and cities. The resolution was approved yesterday by the association which includes Richland and six other counties in the Ashland state highway division.

Need Money In Two Years.

Murray D. Shaffer, Ashland division engineer, told the commissioners their $50,000 contribution over a five-year period would not be accepted by the state highway department since the funds must be available when the work on the project is completed, probably in two years.

Shaffer said he would confer with the commissioners today in an attempt to work out an acceptable agreement. The county has been given until Tuesday to provide a satisfactory contribution, or the project will be taken off the schedule by the state highway department.

Commissioners offered $50,000, the amount the state requested, two days ago, but specified that it would be paid over a five-year period. They also asked that the state highway department finance or help to finance nine other road and bridge jobs in the county.

Agreed to Other Jobs.

The state agreed to place most of the projects on its program for next year if the county meets its demands for the route 30 grade elimination.

The five-year plan would make it unnecessary for the county to issue bonds to finance the job, but Shaffer said "the state is in no better position than the county to issue bonds for a Richland county job."

Unless new bonds are issued, all of the county's bonded indebtedness will be paid off next year, an election year, and county officials have made every effort to be able to show a debt-free state when 1940 rolls around.

Limited county road funds will make it impossible to provide $50,000 in two years without borrowing, commisioners said.

The county's road funds, amounting to about $200,0000 a year, are provided almost entirely by the state from the county's state gasoline tax and auto license receipts.

The state set up approximately $450,000 for financing the grade elimination project west of the city, calling for an under pass at the Erie crossing and an overhead at the B. and O. tracks. Work would be started next summer if the project is approved.

Delinquent Water Bills Lowest In 8 Years

CITY REPORTS ONLY $10,300 ON BOOKS NOW

$13,000 Collected During Past 2 Years; Peak of $36,000 Reached in 1936.

The delinquent balance in the water department today totaled $10,301, the lowest level in eight years, Fred E. Lingafelter, secretary of the water, sewer and garbage department said.

Lingafelter said the greatest reduction in the delinquencies which reached a peak of $36,000 in 1936, was made in the past two years, during which $13,000 has been collected.

In January, 1937, he said, the delinquencies totaled $23,205 as compared with the present $10.301 figure.

He predicted that the balance would be trimmed even further before Dec. 31, by payment of the public and parochial school balances which would reduce the amount outstanding of the water department's books to $8,500.

Examiners Spur Collections.

Lingafelter said that criticism from state examiners in their report the past few years had resulted in a program of more rigid collection of overdue bills.

The secretary reported that the sewer rental balance which is unpaid also has dropped to one of the lowest figures since the service was started in April, 1937, showing 100 per cent collections in that department.

The present balance of $2,587 will be reduced to $911 before the end of the year, he said with the payment of the bill for the Ohio State reformatory by the state.

The highest unpaid balance in the sewer department was reached in November 1938, when delinquencies totaled $5,447.

Lingafelter predicted that the delinquency balance would be hiked only a little from the current west side collection which during the first week of the period has shown a 25 per cent payment. Approximately $10,000 had been collected on the $40,000 billing to date. This is nearly 10 per cent above the normal collection for the first seven days, he said.

Up and Down THE STREET

Philip Smith, elected councilman-at-large Tuesday night to fill the vacancy created by the appointment of George Berg to the presidency, claims he received his first call to duty less than an hour after he was named to the office. As chairman of council's street committee, by virtue of his appointment, a citizen requested that a street in the south end of the city be graded. Smith referred the request to the superintendent of streets.

Because she "forgot" to mention one of her four marriages in court, a Mansfield woman was denied a divorce this morning by Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston. After the woman told the court she had been married only three times, counsel for her husband promptly proved that she had had four husbands. The court withheld the divorce decree and authorized the husband's attorney to file a cross-petition for divorce.

One of man's last domains, the poolroom, has been invaded by the Determined Sex. In a combination news stand and poolroom on West Fourth street yesterday afternoon, which is ordinarily frequented largely by men customers, there was a look of consternation on the faces of daily customers, for at the pool table was a woman shooting a game with a man, and what was even worse—to the daily customers—she was more than holding her own.

* * *

This ought to clear up a lot of wonderment for those people who get excited at the frequent blowing of what they think is the whistle at the reformatory, in the belief that it signifies unusual activity of some sort. The whistle, according to Supt. Arthur L. Glattke, blows twice a day—at 11:30 a. m. and 4:30 p. m. signifying the end of the work period in reformatory factories. No whistle is ever blown in the event of escapes, says Glattke, so if anyone hears a whistle blowing at any other time, it isn't the Reformatory whistle.

TAXES SLUMP

Sales Receipts $4,251 Under Same Week Last Year.

Showing a marked slump for the first time in months, Richland county's sales tax collections for the third week in September were $4,251 under receipts for the corresponding week of 1938, State Treasurer Don H. Ebright treported today.

Collections for the week amounted to $7,719 this year and $11,970 in 1938. Richland county was one of the 36 in the state which reported a drop in the week's receipts.

Sales tax receipts for the county so far this year total $351,322, however, as compared with $285,618 for the same period last year, an increase of $65,704, the report showed.

FORMER GERMAN ENVOY STRICKEN

Count Bernstorff, Germany's Last Ambassador to U. S., Hitler Foe, Dies.

(By International News Service)

GENEVA—A refugee from his native land because of opposition to the Hitler regime, Count Johann Heinrich Von Bernstorff, 76, last ambassador to the United States from imperial Germany, was dead here today.

Once one of the most brilliant, and later one of the most controversial figures in the pre-World war diplomatic set of Washington, Von Bernstorff died a recluse, shunned by the present leaders of the country he served for many years as an outstanding diplomat.

The aging former diplomat died of heart disease.

Target for the hatred of Americans in the war-impassioned days of 1917, Von Bernstorff died respected by world figures as a liberal who sought to establish a democratic government in Germany after the World war defeat. He was a leading figure in the league of nations.

Sad and disillusioned by the rise of Hitler, Von Bernstorff fled Germany in 1933 and has lived here since. For the past five years he has lived alone but for his American-born wife, the former Jeanne Luckmeyer, of New York. He spent his last days writing his memoirs.

To his death, Von Bernstorff contended that had the former Kaiser Wilhelm followed his advice the United States never would have entered the World war. He said that resort to unrestricted submarine warfare automatically would bring America into the war.

Von Bernstorff served as ambassador in Washington from 1908 until he was handed his passport when the United States declared war in 1917.

FOUR HALTED

Two Fined For Speeding On Route 42 Cut-off; 2 Forfeit Bonds.

Four drivers, all from Cleveland, were arrested by state highway patrolmen for speeding on the new cutoff of U. S. route 42 northeast of Mansfield and were cited into municipal court today on charges of careless and reckless driving. Two pleaded guilty and were fined $10 each. The others forfeited $25 bonds when they failed to appear.

Those who were fined were Ernest Witham, 39, and Arthur Arnson, 20. The two who failed to appear in answer to the charges were Herbert Berington, 18, and Lawrence E. Appleton, 42.

COURT APPROVES

Wayde Boyce, Mansfield, had been authorized today by Probate Judge C. J. Anderson to accept $125 damages for injuries received by his small son, Charles Wesley Boyce, in a traific accident last July 12 on route 39 near Lucas.

An agreement for settlement was reached with John A. Guisinger and L. Stanley Kime, owners of a truck which figured in the accident. The boy was a passenger in a car which collided with the truck. There was no damage suit filed in the case.

QUARTET PROVES THEY CAN SING AND 'TAKE IT'—70 HEAR CONCERT

Phil Clark's Marching Men of Song who appeared in concert last night at First Congregational church, not only can sing—but they can "take it."

Last night they sang to an audience of less than 70 persons with all the enthusiasm and generosity with encores that they had given an audience of 500 the night before at Urbana.

Their concert, the first of four entertainment events sponsored by the Mansfield Public Parks Association, was one of exceptianal merit and entertainment value, but it had the misfortune to be presented on the same evening that bank night is held at three Mansfield theaters.

Outside the members of the Kurtz orchestra and the few men of the Parks association who were in charge of the church and tickets, there were 45 people in the audience.

The quartet is comprised of young men with good voices and showmanship and their selection of songs was designed to appeal to popular tastes in music. They included the unforgettable song hits from "Student Prince," "Blossom Time," "Desert Song," "Ric Rita" and other romantic operettas.

They appeared first in the uniforms of the Canadian Royal Mounted police, and then in white sailor uniforms. In this group of songs were such favorites as "Bells of The Sea," the well known "Anchors Aweigh" and selections from Gilbert and Sullivan's "H. M. S. Pinafore.

Their final group included an impressive medley "Cathedral Echoes" in which the church was in entire darkness except for small lights in the hands of the singers which lighted their faces.

Clark, director of the quartet, sang several familiar Irish songs and the other three were heard in solos. Joseph Folmer, tenor, sang D'Hardelot's "Message," Edison Campbell, baritone, gave "One Alone" from "The Desert Song" and Youmen's "Without a Song" while Winston Haggott, basso, was heard in "The Road To Mandalay."

Before the concert, Kurtz' All-Girl orchestra gave a 15-minute program.

The second number on the series will be a lecture next Friday night by Clarence Sorenson.

One Word of Truth In Hitler's Rantings Ab Wanting Peace in Eurc

—By JANE WIL

ADOLPH HITLER'S speech yesterday is typical of thing that comes out of Europe these days in t of "news"—you can read every word of it and sti nothing when you finish it.

In the first place it is bewildering and confusing so passionate a plea for peace from one who started trouble. His plan for peace sounded a little like a wife's overtures after a violent quarrel with her husband:

"It's so silly of us to quarrel, and everything would work out so beautifully if you weren't such a dirty dog and would let me have my own way."

* * *

BUT never did Hitler speak more truly than when he said "Only one thing is certain. There never have been two victors in the world's history, but very often there have been only losers—the World war showed that."

* * *

He warned the allies that if they refused his offer to mediate for peace this time, that the war would start in earnest, with "millions of lives and billions of dollars lost"; and that after it is all over, the boundaries between Germany and her enemies will be lined with "ruins and gigantic cemeteries."

And even these sacrifices, he pointed out, will not settle the problems of Europe.

Which is an important point to be remembered by all of those pro-English and pro-German Americans who think that America should "do something."

* * *

WOULDN'T it be a splendid thing if some one would start a pro-American movement? A movement in which Americans would sympathize with themselves, would look to their own problems, would set about making friendships and stronger trade ties with the nations of the two Americas?

The so-called American whose sympathies are with Germany and Hitler, is no more dangerous to his own country than the so-called American whose sympathies with England and France blind him to their shortcomings. And the most unpatriotic of all is the man who seeks to set up a "fear" consciousness in the American mind; fear that the allies will be defeated, fear that Germany will take Canada, fear that the German warlords will come right over push us off our own shor

I doubt if there is an the United States stupid to honestly believe that—grand propaganda for th tries that want to drag their war. And don't t propaganda hasn't started see "Thunder Afloat"? until you see "Nurse E vall"—it will make you w right over and run a sabre the first German you mee

* * *

EVEN if the allies sh the war, Canada is pendent a nation to figur war indemnities, but the not lose the war—Mr. the contrary. No matter h men are sacrificed, Great navy will repeat its acc ment of the World war a Germany out.

There are no soldiers world to compare with France, and the English has a funny little phras "muddling through," means that he may los battle—except the last

The British navy has victorious in every majo has fought in the 351 ye have passed since the Armada. Excepting, of c encounters with the Unite navy and these were not jor" proportions. And dor that Great Britain's tre reserves and natural reso her colonies are not eve gered by the war, while G entire resources are as vi as Achilles' heel.

WHEN Al Smith lines his old political ene favor of lifting the emb selling munitions to Eur must forget, in all fairne he is the landlord of the State building, and that Pont company, largest m turers of munitions in A is one of his best paying in the building, and re only that the Happy War always been honest with and conscientious—even was wrong.

FAIR ENOUGH

New Kind of Pamphlet For British to Drop on Nazis Suggested by Col. Pegler

—By WESTBROOK P

NEW YORK—Oldtime Chicago reporters, who incidentally, some of the greatest free-style, ten-go the world has ever known, sometimes tell of a cr unusual stratagem by which the police wrung conf from otherwise unyielding suspects.

At the old Harrison street station or Despaines or the bureau, the scene varying according to the mood of the narrator, the coppers would just about starve a man for, say, four or five days, and when they figured that they had him good and ready would start a pinochle game outside his cell, in the course of which one of them would remark that he was hungry enough to eat a Chinaman and how about sending out for a snack of something.

* * *

So they would send across the street for a waiter, who would presently appear with the score card from the quick-and-dirty, if it was Harrison or Despaines, or from the Briggs house, if it was the bureau, and they would sit there reading out loud, about like this:

First Cop: "How is the planked steak and french fried potatoes tonight, Gus, and does the mince pie come with it or is that extra?"

Second Cop: "I had turkey for dinner with plum pudding after, but a man shouldn't neglect his health, so I might go for a little of that pot roast and dumpling and a big can of coffee and a good 10-cent cigar."

They would finally order a long list of rare viands and exotic delicacies, and when it came, would clear the pinochle table and sit there lapping it up. Until the prisoner, with a desperate shriek, would leap into the bars of his cage and offer to confess to all the unsolved crimes on the books.

He was just a jibbering, quivering wreck, unnerved by the sight and fumes of food, and the pathetic state to which this, let us hope, mythical victim was reduced suggests possibilities which hereby are offered to the British and French war departments in the interests of peace and democracy.

* * *

The British have been bombarding the German people with pamphlets faulting Adolf Hi appealing to their desire f knowing that in Germany chopping-block offense to any document in disprais fuehrer and a crime but l grave to think, much les of peace.

It is no offense, how indulge in dreams of wiene zel or roast pork, enormou of roast beef with baked and gravy, roast stuffed goose liver dumplings, pl with whipped cream an high stacks of white br unlimited quantities of pu en butter. By all means of white bread and real not that ersatz made f blubber of sea gulls and f yourself to the white br butter, Fritz.

It has been so long si Germans even read a n such richness that, cons the almost lifelong, if so intermittent, privation of the Germans now li bombardment of menus strike deeper into thei than any settled, profess editorial tracts on the pe Hitler or the joys of pea

* * *

It costs no more to pri of fare, and the German live, barring members of erning circle, who is impe the temptations of such ganda scattered to the wi

One good gas attack, b and cloud, of high-octane house fumes would reduce group of armies to the s point, and yet the British, simple, silly way, attempt to them unkindly of Adol whom they love, and e of peace, which they hate

I leave it to any old-t cago reporter to say how would take to break the morale.

OR THIRSTY!
THERE'S NOTHIN' TO WORRY ABOUT — THE SISTER-IN-LAW IS A HARMLESS OLD LADY WHO'LL NEVER SUSPECT ANYTHING — ONE LOOK AN' YOU CAN TELL SHE'S AS SIMPLE AS A CHILD — I TOLD HER I WAS JUST A POOR, HONEST PROSPECTOR
GLORYOSKY, ZERO — I LIKE TO LIVE IN THE DESERT — IT'S AWFUL BIG AN' KINDA LONESOME — BUT THE AIR SMELLS NICE AN' PERFUMY AN' EVERYTHING IS TERRIBLE PEACEFUL
— AN' MRS. SPRUCE'S SISTER TREATS ME AWFUL NICE — SHE MAKES SWELL COOKIES FOR ME AN' ALWAYS LOOKS SO FRIENDLY, 'CEPTIN' WHEN HER HUSBAND IS HOME —
THEN HER FACE GETS WHITE AN' KINDA SCARED-LOOKIN' AN' SHE KEEPS WATCHIN' HIM — SHE THINKS HE'S GONNA GET MAD AT HER FOR SOMETHIN' AN' START TO HOLLER AT HER —
DARRELL McCLURE
BUT I TOLD MRS. SPRUCE NOT TO WORRY — THAT'S JUST HIS WAY — THAT HE'S A POOR, HONEST PROSPECTOR WHO'S ALWAYS TIRED FROM WORKIN' HARD, TRYIN' TO FIND A GOLD MINE TO MAKE HIM RICH

I'M SURE GONNA MISS YOU, TOO, MOLLY. BUT HAVE A NICE TIME, DARLING.
ALL ABOARD!
DID YOUR WIFE GO AWAY ON A TRIP, MR. SKIDDER?
YES, TOOTS, SHE'S GONNA SPEND A FEW WEEKS WITH HER FOLKS... I NEVER DREAMT I'D MISS HER SO MUCH.
GOSH, OUR ROOMS UPSTAIRS SEEM LONELY NOW.... I'M JUST FINDING OUT IT TAKES MORE THAN FURNITURE TO MAKE A HOME...

JIMMY MURPHY

THERE'S AL SKIDDER'S EX-WIFE, JULIE, GOING IN THAT ROOMING-HOUSE.... I DIDN'T KNOW SHE WAS BACK IN TOWN.... OH, JULIE!
I CAME TO VISIT DANNY AND MABEL, BUT THEY'RE AWAY ON A TRIP! IT'S LONELY ALL BY MYSELF, CASPER. BUT IT GIVES ME PLENTY OF TIME TO THINK ABOUT HOW FOOLISH I USED TO ACT!
ROOMS FOR RENT
I HOPE ALFRED AND MOLLY ARE HAPPY! IT WAS HORRID OF ME TO TRY TO KEEP THEM APART— I HOPE THEY'LL SOME DAY FORGIVE ME.
DON'T CRY, JULIE... IT WOULD BE A PUNK WORLD IF NOBODY EVER FORGAVE ANYONE
JIMMY MURPHY
I GUESS JULIE REGRETS THE WAY SHE USED TO ACT! MAYBE I'M TOO CHICKEN-HEARTED, BUT I FEEL SORRY FOR HER LIVING ALONE IN A FURNISHED ROOM.... SHE COULD STAY WITH US WHILE SHE'S IN TOWN... TOOTS WOULDN'T MIND....

TOOTS, I TOLD JULIE TO STAY WITH US WHILE SHE'S IN TOWN FOR A WEEK OR TWO!
I'M SO GLAD TO SEE YOU AGAIN, DEAR.
YOU'RE TO OCCUPY THE FRONT BED-ROOM, JULIE!
THANK YOU, CASPER.
GREAT SCOTT! I INVITED AL SKIDDER TO STAY WITH US WHILE HIS WIFE'S AWAY.
WOWIE! AND HERE I'VE BROUGHT HIS EX-WIFE TO STAY WITH US!
MOLLY WILL NEVER FORGIVE US FOR BRINGING AL AND JULIE TOGETHER AGAIN! SHE'LL SWEAR WE FRAMED IT THAT WAY! QUICK! 'PHONE AL NOT TO COME.
TOO LATE! HERE HE COMES NOW!
JIMMY MURPHY
10-4

YOU'RE TO OCCUPY THE REAR BED-ROOM, AL.
CASPER, IT WAS NICE OF YOU TO INVITE ME TO STAY WITH YOU WHILE MOLLY IS AWAY!
OH, WHAT A DELICATE SITUATION! AL SKIDDER AND HIS EX-WIFE BOTH HOUSE GUESTS OF OURS, WHILE HIS NEW WIFE IS OUT OF TOWN!!! MOLLY WILL THINK IT WAS ALL PRE-ARRANGED.
WE'RE IN A SPOT, TOOTS! WE CAN'T ASK EITHER OF THEM TO LEAVE.
JULIE MAY TRY TO STEAL AL AWAY FROM MOLLY— WE MAY INNOCENTLY BE HELPING TO BREAK UP A HOME! OH, I KNOW THERE'S GOING TO BE TROUBLE!
HERE'S WHERE AL AND JULIE MEET AGAIN! WOWIE! NOW WATCH THE FUR FLY!
JIMMY MURPHY
ALFRED SKIDDER!
BY A CO-INCIDENCE, FOLKS, YOU'RE BOTH MY HOUSE-GUESTS AT THE SAME TIME.
JULIE!
OH, ALFRED, FORGIVE ME FOR THE WAY I'VE ACTED IN THE PAST. YOUR WIFE IS LOVELY AND I HOPE YOU BOTH ARE VERY HAPPY TOGETHER!
MOLLY SURE IS A PEACH— SHE'S AWAY ON A TRIP AND I CERTAINLY DO MISS HER—
JULIE HAS CHANGED... SHE SEEMS MORE LIKE A HUMAN BEING NOW.... SHE WAS MY WIFE ONCE AND I CAN'T HATE HER FOR THAT!
I THOUGHT I COULD OVERCOME ENVY, BUT I CAN'T! ALFRED IS WELL-TO-DO NOW— AND WHEN I THINK BUT FOR MOLLY I MIGHT BE HIS WIFE AGAIN— I CAN'T HELP HATING HER!
JIMMY MURPHY
YOU CAN'T CHANGE THE SPOTS OF A LEOPARD
JULIE IS THE SAME OLD JULIE, AND THAT MEANS TROUBLE AHEAD.

I HOPE YOUR WIFE WON'T THINK WE FRAMED IT FOR YOU AND YOUR EX-WIFE TO BE OUR HOUSE GUESTS AT THE SAME TIME, MR. SKIDDER.
MOLLY IS TOO SWEET TO THINK ANYTHING OF THE SORT, TOOTS.
DID YOU GIVE MOLLY PLENTY OF DOUGH FOR HER TRIP, AL?
I TOLD HER TO TAKE WHAT SHE NEEDED OUTA MY SAFE AT THE STORE.... I NEVER LOOK TO SEE WHAT SHE TAKES... SHE'S MORE CAREFUL WITH MY MONEY THAN I AM, MYSELF, CASPER.
I KEEP $5000.00 IN CASH ON HAND ALL THE TIME, BUT I'LL BET MOLLY DIDN'T TAKE OVER $100.00 WITH HER... SHE'S ALMOST TOO THRIFTY!
JIMMY MURPHY
MOLLY CAN HELP HERSELF TO WHAT SHE WANTS, AND HERE I AM DESPERATE FOR MONEY! SAY, I STILL KNOW THE COMBINATION TO ALFRED'S SAFE! HMM-M— I COULD USE SOME OF HIS MONEY AND MAKE IT LOOK LIKE SHE TOOK MORE DOUGH THAN HE THINKS— HMM-M—

LOYALTY MOVE BRINGS GAINS IN ATTENDANCE

Church Program Enters 2nd Week Sunday With 'Christ of Every Man' as Theme.

Mansfield is not only known as "The City of Churches," but is becoming a city of church-goers. Mansfield ministers pointed out today as they prepared for the second week of the "Loyalty to Christ and Church" program.

Marked increases in attendance were reported by virtually all the churches last Sunday as they held their annual observance of Rally Day and began the 12-week loyalty program sponsored by the Richland County Ministerial association.

"The Christ of Every Man" is the theme for the second week.

In many churches programs of visitation were held during the past week in conjunction with the loyalty program.

Beginning the second week of the loyalty program, the First Methodist church tomorrow will observe promotion day in each department with a special program. Department exercises will begin at 9:15 a. m. and are open to parents.

"Christ and Every Man" will be the sermon subject of Rev. E. G. Corwin, pastor, during the morning service at 10:30. Music will include the anthem, "Open My Eyes," by McFarlane, sung by the choir, and a violin solo, "Midnight Temple Bells," by Mrs. Daisy Gibson, Miss Thelma Ringenberg will act as leader for the Epworth League rally at 6.30 p m "Friends on Life's Journey" will be the topic for discussion.

Pictures Christ as Teacher.

Stressing the importance of Christ as the teacher of men, Rev. Herman L. Gilbert, pastor, of St. Paul Lutheran church, will preach on the theme "The Christ of Every Man," at the 10:30 a. m. service.

St. Mark's Lutheran church continues its loyalty program, emphasizing the need of a continue rallying within the church. Rev. J. E. Marshall, pastor, also will preach on the subject, "The Christ of Every Man."

The same subject will be used by Rev. Hayes M. Braker, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, during the service of worship at 10:30 a. m. The senior choir, directed by Lawrence S. Frank, minister of music, will sing "Rejoice in the Lord Alway," by Purcell, and Miss Williamine Hoffman will sing as a solo, "The Prayer Perfect," by Bond. Frank will present as his organ selections, "Ave Maria," by Schubert, "Intermezzo," by Maseagni, and "Evening Star," by Wagner. Registration of all attending this service will be taken.

The two young people groups of the church will meet at 6:30 p. m. Marjory Ann Hawkins will lead the Senior high school group, and Mrs. James Keith will lead the older group. Mrs. H. E. Neese, adviser for both groups, will present the devotional period.

Meetings of two church groups are scheduled next week. The Samaritan class meets at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday with Mrs. Roy Crider, 396 Springmill street, and the monthly meeting of the Women's Union will be held at 10 a. m. Wednesday at the church. Miss Hazel McMeeken will give the topic, "Christian Citizenship," and Miss Esther Lantz will discuss the story of "Esther" in presenting the devotional service.

The topic, "Telling Jesus" is to be discussed during the weekly prayer service at 7:30 p. m. Thursday.

Holy Communion will be observed at 9:45 a. m. Sunday at the First Lutheran church. Rev. Grover E. Swoyer will give the meditation on "Our Passover."

The choir will sing "Bread of the World, In Mercy Broken" by Berwald. For the 7.30 p. m. service, Rev. Swoyer will speak on "Even If Sin Is Real, Does It Matter Much?" Miss Geraldine Harley and Frederick Wolf will sing "My Faith Looks Up to Thee" as the offertory duet.

Meetings of the Senior and Intermediate Luther leagues are scheduled for 6:30 p. m. Wednesday in the parish house, and the Florence Welty Missionary society meets at 7.30 p. m. Monday in the parish house.

SUBJECT SUNDAY

'Are Sin, Disease and Death Real? To Be Scientist Topic.

"Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Church of Christ, Scientist, Sunday.

The Golden Text is: "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits: who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases" (Psalms 103.2,3).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Then said Jesus to those Jews which believed on him, If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; . . . And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free" (John 8.31,32)

DON COSSACK CHORUS TO OPEN CIVIC MUSIC SEASON NEXT WEEK

The Mansfield Civic Music association's 1939-40 season will get under way next Friday night when the world famous Don Cossack chorus is presented at Senior High school auditorium.

This group of exiled Russians were able to keep their engagements this season only because Lady Luck gave them a break after they had been caught in Germany at the outbreak of the war. It is perhaps the only large group of foreigners to reach this country intact.

The difficulty of securing accommodations on a neutral steamer was solved when the 30-odd men agreed to sleep in one room, a large drawing room, on a Norwegian steamer. They began their current tour at Montreal where they gave a concert on Oct. 1.

The chorus is made up of more than 30 singers, and for most of them the crowded voyage was far better than a similar one taken almost 19 years ago to the day when they formed a part of a band of 2,000 Russian exiles who were herded onto a small Turkish steamer and dumped on the Isle of Lesbos, pending the decision of the League of Nations for the men who had put up a last resistance to the Bolsheviks.

The chorus, which is directed by the dynamic Serge Jaroff, is one of the best known choral groups in the world It has appeared in 726 American concerts and in almost 2,000 in Europe. The Cossacks gave six concerts in the Free City of Danzig this summer.

There are three concerts on the Civic Music program this season Rev. David Roller, president of the association, announced today that the date of the National Symphony had been changed and would be heard here sometime late in January. Gladys Swarthout, opera and motion picture star, will sing here March 11.

Hitler's Peace

ADOLF HITLER has made his peace offer and the Allies have said—unofficially, but nonetheless emphatically—that they see no basis for discussion in it.

That, after all, is about what everyone expected the thing to turn out from the very beginning.

Hitler swallows Poland, then turns and says to France and Britain, Poland's allies, "There is no Poland. What do you want to fight for?"

He almost ignores the fact that his question was answered before he asked it—Chamberlain and Daladier gave him the answer when they said there could be no peace in Europe so long as Hitlerism existed.

True Hitler offers to set up a Polish state, but insists that Germany and Russia must control it. He says no one but Germany and Russia shall have anything to say about what goes on in eastern Europe. He says Germany will sit down at a peace conference with France and Britain, with whom, he protests, he would like to be friends, and that he has no demands on them except for some colonies Germany used to have before the war, but that is a question that can be settled without resort to arms.

That is the gist of Hitler's peace plan—and it is truly Hitleresque. It is typical of the man to admit only one side of any discussion, his own. The interests of the other powers he passes over as entirely unimportant and practically nonexistent.

In the light of his previous statement "I have no further territorial demands in Europe" made at the time he took over the Sudeten area, the Allies can hardly be criticized for finding little else in his offer in which they can put any faith.

Nevertheless, the man they accused of lying so often did tell the truth in yesterday's speech.

That was when he said that if the war went on it would be a "triumph of destruction."

Are You Registered?

HERE'S a final reminder for those potential Mansfield voters who haven't qualified for the Nov. 7 election. You have just a little over a day to get on the rolls.

The deadline for registering and transferring is 8:30 p. m. Monday and if you are not qualified by that hour you won't get another chance until next year.

The only place you can register or transfer is the board of elections office in the courthouse.

Selection of public officials via the ballot box is a traditional American custom. It is not only a privilege for every citizen 21 years of age or over to vote, but it is his duty under our form of government.

If you are not qualified now, register or transfer before 8:30 tonight or sometime between 8 a. m. and 8:30 p. m. Monday.

Inexperienced In Democracy

MUCH has been said and written of the blunders the democracies made in writing the Versailles Treaty. Their real mistake, says a former German now living in New York, came later. It lay in not giving more help and moral support to the post-war German republic.

At the present time, observes this ex-German in a letter to the New York Times, Hitler is really Germany's leader. The majority there is still ready to follow him, despite distrust of specific acts or measures.

"To base any policy on a contrary view seems to me extremely dangerous," he writes. "A downfall of Nazism alone would not be sufficient to secure lasting peace. Something else must be done—a century of education for democracy. For the German people had never before time and opportunity to get acquainted with this form of life. It is the eternal guilt of the Allies not to have helped the Weimar Republic reach its goal."

Many of us believe that education for democracy must be self-education, by a determined and independent people with a gift for self-government. They wonder whether the Germans have such a gift. Yet the suggestion is worth thinking about and should certainly be considered during the making of the next peace—when and if Hitlerism is overthrown.

Jobs

A REPORT on employment in one of the typical mid-western industrial states shows facts like these:

That a shortage of skilled workmen is developing, as a result of the business pick-up and the lack of practical training during the last 10 years.

That employers are expanding the age limits for workmen.

That sales people are being offered salaries along with their commissions.

That applicants for jobs are no longer willing to take "just any kind of work," because they think prosperity is returning and they can pick and choose.

That unfilled orders for women workers are the greatest in a decade.

That some employers are calling for men they do not need now, to line them up for future needs.

That there is now a demand for men without experience.

That people of 40 to 45 years of age now have a fair chance.

These facts are, to many people, more important than what is going on abroad.

Unethical Escape

THE German government protested to the Rumanian government because a Polish airplane designer escaped in a Polish military plane, when both man and plane were supposedly safely interned in Rumania. It was an infraction of a rule of war. Once interned in a neutral country, the citizen of a belligerent country is supposed to stay put, more or less on his honor. The government of the neutral country is supposed to keep track of him in case he feels a little restless.

A thoughtful person who looks upon war as anything but a glorious game finds this a curious matter. "All's fair in love and war" is more realistic. It would certainly ruin a baseball game if put-out runners didn't stay put out, but war is not baseball. It is ruthless and unjust and cruel in all its manifestations. Each belligerent attempts every art and ruse to deceive the enemy in every important matter connected with the maneuvering of armies and navies. Why not be equally artful and bold in other phases of war?

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The old man who operated a tiny, untidy shop in the core of the lower east side for so many years isn't there any more. And gone are his ghastly displays of tape-worms, which used to startle the citizens out of their wits, and sometimes their dinners, when they learned what those things were.

Those jars were to frighten you. For he was a business man, and he sold patented cures for tape-worm victims. Yet it seemed at times if the old man was really fond of his "pets," as he called them. He even had names for them. . . . "There's Joe, poor old Joe in that glass. . . . Now, this one is Daisy. . . . Daisy has been with me five years." . . . It went on like that, endlessly and forever. . . . One day the neighbors found him weeping bitterly, all by himself, in his little shop. They pressed him for a reason. Finally, between sobs, he pointed to a lot of shattered glass on the floor. . . . "Poor Thelma," he sobbed, "I accidentally dropped her, and now . . ." he trailed off, unconsolable.

OF COURSE, I did not witness this spectacle of grief, and so I cannot vouch for it. The man may have been just a very good ham actor. There were stories circulated about the Orchard street neighborhood that some of his "props" were strictly on the phoney side. For instance, they pointed out that next door was an Italian spaghetti store, and that perhaps Katie was just a long, gangling string of macaroni.

But what of it? The point I wish to make is, the old man is gone. Where, I don't know. No one seems to know. One day he was there. The next a sign that said "For Sail" was dangling in the breeze. The spelling is his own. Maybe he did go for a sail. Anyway, he gave a touch of novelty to a district where the unusual is common-place and where the commanplace is abhorred.

* * *

THE south-bound Third Avenue surface cars should remove those "To Postoffice" signs. The Postoffice isn't there any more. It was torn down last winter to make way for an enlarged City Hall park at Park Row (where all the New York newspapers used to have their offices) and Broadway.

Incidentally, when the postoffice was torn down it removed the most appropriately situated building in New York. For the postoffice was on—Mail street.

* * *

Sign in front of a Bowery barbershop: "Shoes shined inside." Now that is carrying fastidiousness too far!

* * *

The key to those mystery ships, freighters for the most part, lying in East river, is this. When they first arrive they are low in the water, their holds being crammed with cargo. Next day they appear so huge as to be unbelievable. This is because the holds are now empty and the ships are riding high in the water. (I didn't just figure that one out—a cop told me.)

* * *

You will, I'm sure, cheer through your tears for Deight Long, author of "Seven Seas on a Shoestring," who four years ago sailed out of Seattle in a 32-foot boat on a 'round - the - world cruise. A dog was his lone companion. After four years of storm and strife, he arrived in New York without a mishap—and then wrecked his craft in a hurricane which slapped the Atlantic coast. It required some time to make it seaworthy again. He is enroute to Bermuda now, from which he will return to the west coast, marking the end of his around the world voyage.

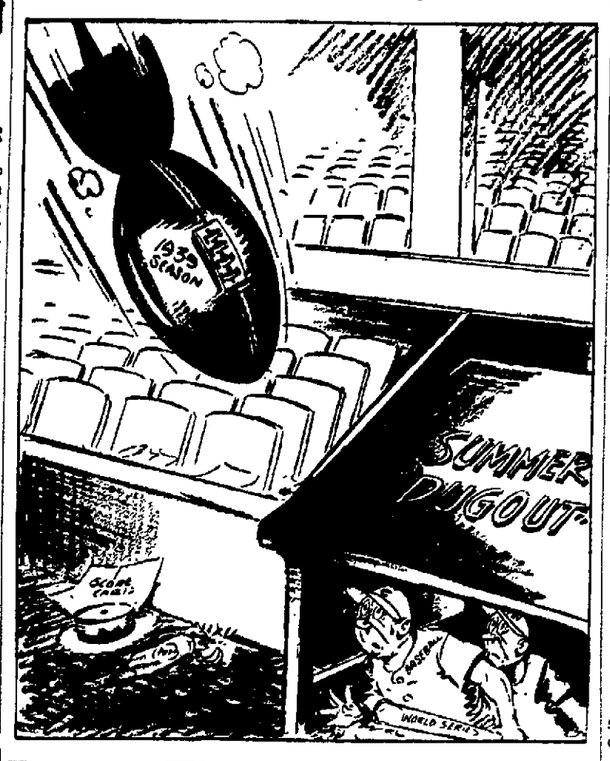
"HERE IT COMES!"



Listen, World!

Would You Be Happy If You Could.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I wonder how many of us would be happy if we could!

"What a ridiculous question!" you say. "Everyone wants to be happy!"

Yes, indeedy! Everyone WANTS to be happy. But how many of us would be willing to pay the price? How many of us would be willing to take that first and most important step toward happiness, namely drop our load of sadness. . . . Quit our role of martyr. . . . Double up our fists and get glad? Darned few, I'll bet!

There's a lively passage on this subject in Sinclair Lewis's immortal "Babbit." Someone has been whining about the misery of our mortal existence in general—and its boredom in particular. Whereupon the straight-hitting Paul Riesling breaks out:

"I don't know the solution of boredom. If I did, I'd be the one philosopher that had the cure for living. But I do know that about ten times as many people find their lives dull, and unnecessarily dull, as ever admit it; and I do believe that if we busted out and admitted it sometimes, instead of being nice and patient and loyal for sixty years, and then nice and patient and dead for the rest of eternity, why, maybe, possibly, we might make life more fun."

"We might make life more fun" . . . we certainly could. But do we want to? No we don't! We refuse to admit it . . . we get insulted if anyone hints at it . . . but the simple truth is—it's a lot more convenient for the average mortal to be sad than it is to be glad.

Sadness requires practically no effort and can be turned into one of the most remunerative rackets on earth. As an alibi for selfishness, laziness, cowardice and general cussedness it's unbeatable. As a spot-light for conceit, it's worth a score of Kleig Lights. And as a protection against criticism, it's invincible.

Why is the world so full of cry-babies? Is it because life is essentially and incurably tragic? Is man foredoomed to grief and gripes? And is there nothing he can do about it? Not at all! There's plenty he can do about it! It is possible for anyone who isn't a half-wit or a hopeless sufferer to lead an interesting, exciting and congenial existence. But we just don't wanna!

For happiness requires exertion. You've got to work at the job . . . roll up your sleeves and fight. Which is, at all times, no snap—and frequently highly unpopular. There's nothing as obnoxious to the lazy fellow who doesn't want to Improve Affairs as the bustling fellow who does. These Up-'n-Attem lads not only disturb the general comfort of the slackers, but they show them up for the loafers which they actually are.

It's quite as possible, however, to make a racket of gladness as of sadness—and the professional Glad Hander is even more detestable than the professional Gloom. These beaming blue-birds who are always advising you to "look for the silver lining to the cloud" are particularly obnoxious.

If you're really interested in relieving human misery, don't waste your time in looking for silver linings . . . roll up your sleeves and tackle the cloud instead! Don't try to "make the best of things"! Get busy and fight the worst in 'em.

Men weren't meant to be martyrs. Health and happiness are our rightful heritage. And we'll have them as soon as we're willing to junk our hells and take a chance on heaven!

A Farmer's Diary

The Women Are Talking.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE house was once one of the finest ones in our neighboring town. Now its aged bricks are hidden by neutral gray paint, its high aristocratic windows hung with plain white muslin, and upon its lawn a simple sign proclaims, GOOD SAMARITAN HOSPITAL.

Here, in the evening, my two older children and I went to see their mother and the new arrival in our family. We found her alone the only occupant of a ward containing four immaculate beds. Upon our query as to whether she was lonesome, she replied, that on the contrary this little hospital was one of the friendliest places she had been.

"More than half the patients here now," she said, "are here for the same reason that I am. There's a preacher's new son, a teacher's new daughter, besides our own little farmer. The taxicab driver took his new boy home this morning."

"But you say more than half the patients are maternity cases," I exclaimed. "This town has more than 7000 people. That sounds like a big crop of vital statistics, doesn't it?"

"It does," she laughed, "until you know that this hospital has but twelve beds. They are planning a new hospital. It is to be voted upon in November. There is a group of ladies, who sponsor this one, who are working for the new building to house a city hospital. It will be a plain, substantial piece of architecture, but no expense spared on the equipment."

"How did you learn so much?" I asked her. My wife's enthusiasm was plainly kindled.

"I talked with the nurses. They're a civic minded group of women. One, especially, whose home has always been here, and who returned to nursing because she loved the work after twelve years in a local business, told me quite a lot about the Ladies' Auxiliary and the splendid work they are doing."

"If there should be an epidemic," I mused, "a dozen beds would certainly not serve 7000 people."

"Any woman knows the necessity for a good hospital in a town—and women will talk. I think they'll get their hospital," said she, astutely. "Haven't you noticed that when American women want something reasonable, their men will usually get it for them?"

"Or else—" said I. "That's democracy."

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"Eat, Drink and Be Merry."

Omar Khayyam, as everybody knows, said it; but when he did, he forgot to put it in quotes.

Also, he distorted the sense, so that the words counselled "Get what you can while the getting is good," rather than the good cheer, moderation and reasonableness connoted by the original line, which we have from the Good Book.

As set down in Ecclesiastes 5:15, this is the philosophy of the Preacher:

"Then I commend mirth, because a man hath no better thing under the sun, than to eat, and to drink and to be merry: For that shall abide with him of his labor the days of his life, which God giveth him under the sun."

Have you any dirty washing, mother dear
We're going to hang out the washing on the Siegfried line,

We'll just rub along with a care;
We're going to hang out the washing on the Siegfried line

PLUGGED in London night clubs to a tune reminiscent of "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag," that ditty echoed the prevailing British attitude, as the war coasted through its fifth week, toward peace overtures from Berlin.

Cherubic, red-haired Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, chanted similar sentiments in an empire radio broadcast last Sunday night, as King George summoned an estimated 250,000 more men to the colors.

"It was for Hitler to say when the war would begin," Churchill boomed, "but it is not for him or his successors to say when it will end. It began when he wanted it, but it will end only when we are convinced that he has had enough."

Prime Minister Chamberlain joined the chorus in his weekly report to Parliament Tuesday: The "attempted" partition of Poland and the "scarcely veiled threat" of German-Soviet collaboration had not moved Britain from her resolve to "end the successive acts of German aggression."

And French Premier Daladier picked up the refrain next day: "France . . . refuses to bow to violence and accomplished facts. She wishes, not a truce between two aggressions, but durable peace."

The Nazi assault on Allied determination had begun last week-end in Moscow, where the new firm of Hitler & Stalin split Poland, and mapped further economic cooperation.

This week the Fuehrer killed time before a scheduled declaration to the Reichstag Friday by calling in the Italian foreign minister, Mussolini's son-in-law. Count Ciano went up Sunday, conferred with Hitler that night and sped home next day amid loud silence.

Two days later Rome turned up its hand—and revealed no hole ace: "Several English newspapers have published dispatches according to which Il Duce is studying plans for a peace conference," the Fascist news agency declared. "This news is without any foundation. Under present circumstances Italy will not take any initiative of this sort."

Yesterday, Hitler made his "final" peace offer, which included creation of a sawed-off Polish state, a vague reference to disarmament, economic readjustment in favor of the totalitarian powers.

Should his "outstretched hand" be refused, he said, Germany would fight, and there would be a "triumph of destruction." But he was sure Germany would win.

London and Paris studied his speech, unofficially, found nothing in it that offered any basis for peace.

Battlefields

Cautious Sparring.

French vigilance against baring military moves to the public, and thus possibly to the enemy, was somewhat relaxed this week to enable American correspondents to cable their first authorized eye-witness accounts of operations between the Maginot and Siegfried lines.

"The war on the western front thus far is a cautious sparring match, with the French doing the leading," wrote an AP reporter who visited a French-captured pine woods inside the German border.

Paris correspondents figured a month of such warfare had given French troops (1) some 65 villages in a 150-square-mile strip of Germany perhaps eight miles wide in some sectors between the Moselle and Rhine rivers, and (2) a "balcony position" for shelling industrial towns from heights overlooking the Saar valley.

The German high command insisted, early in the week, that there was "no fighting worthy of mention . . . only minor artillery and airplane activity."

Aerial scouts zoomed above the slow-moving ground forces. Allied planes were said to be shooting photos of enemy positions. Britons cheered the report of a successful night flight over Berlin.

Russia's Role

While his peers pow-wowed at Munich, a year ago last week-end, Joe Stalin puffed his pipe in silent, sulky solitude. That, seers said, meant Russia would turn her back on Europe and seek her fortune in the east. Developments in the last six weeks have proved how wrong the seers can be—and split them into two schools of thought on Russia's new role in the west.

Said one school: The Reds and Nazis became full partners under their Aug. 23 non-aggression pact. Their partition of Poland was calendared before the shooting started. And if the Allies won't forget their guarantees to Poland and make peace now on Hitler's terms, Stalin will throw Russia's military might and resources behind the Reich.

Said the other: Stalin saw in August that Britain and France "meant business." To make sure there'd be a war, he merely encouraged Hitler not to back down. Russia invaded Poland to halt the Nazis' amazingly swift drang nach osten and turn their energies to the western front. There he hopes Germany and the Allies will bleed each other white and set the stage for revolutions that will extend communism over western Europe.

In Moscow's latest moves each school saw support for its analysis of Soviet strategy.

The partition of Poland gave Russia somewhat less land than her army was to occupy under a previous Red-Nazi demarcation.

That, said School No. 1, proved that the Soviet wasn't trying to limit German authority in eastern Europe. It only proved, answered School No. 2, that the partition had not been mapped in advance.

On the excuse that Estonia was harboring mysterious submarines which menaced Russian shipping, the U. S. S. R. had extracted from her little neighbor the right to maintain bases and troops on Estonian soil. Thus, argued School No. 1, Russia gained a surer foothold on the Baltic for possible operations against the Allies. On the contrary, replied School No. 2, she bluntly notified the Nazis to keep their hand off that neck of the woods.

Similar conflicting interpretations of Russia's role in the Balkans, as well as the Baltic, were placed on this week's Kremlin negotiations with Turkey, Latvia and Lithuania.

At Home

Cincinnati Session.

Claiming a gain of nearly half a million members in a year, for a current total of 4,006,354, the American Federation of Labor opened its 59th convention in Cincinnati last Monday. Most pressing intramural matters were charges that might lead to suspension of:

1. The 42,000 - member Brewery Workers union, for seeking an injunction against an AFL award of jurisdiction over beer truck drivers to the teamsters' union;
2. The 80,000 - member International Typographical union, for refusal to pay a special assessment to finance AFL's war on CIO.

The delegates, however, seemed more interested in Europe's war and America's argument over how to stay out. Let the U. S., suggested the executive council, offer its "mediation services for peace . . . but . . . refuse to go farther." If this country goes to war, President William Green warned, "labor's gains will be wiped out overnight." AFL would support FDR's plea for repeal of the arms embargo, he added, "with the understanding that it is for the purpose of keeping us out. . . ."

Sports Dept.

Baseball writers, voting last spring in an AP poll, doped the New York Yankees to win their fourth straight American league pennant and the Cincinnati Reds to top the National league. They were right. Now the two teams are battling it out in the world series, which began in New York Wednesday (The Yanks won the first two, 2-1 and 4-0.) and continues in Cincinnati today.

To confirm the dopesters' guess on the series, the New Yorkers would have to break their own record by hanging up a fourth straight grand championship.

Debate

Rain-soaked Americans elbowed their way into the Senate gallery Monday noon to witness the first round of an argument which they felt might effect their lives.

The question: What was the United States going to do about (1) selling supplies to European belligerents, (2) keeping America clear of belligerent fire?

Lead-off speaker was Nevada's slim, debonair Key Pittman, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, who defended his committee's new bill to substitute a come-and-get-it plan for the present embargo on arms shipments to warring nations.

Pittman saw in the present law "a discrimination in favor of Germany, because it prevents Great Britain, which is surrounded by water, from purchasing in our market arms . . . whilst Germany, being a land power, has access to arms . . . that may be manufactured in Russia, Italy, Rumania, Yugoslavia . . ."

* * *

The Lion Roars.

Idaho's shaggy-haired William Edgar Borah answered with a booming, two-hour speech in which he scoffed at the cash-and-carry proposal as a step toward war:

"Cash! . . . We are dealing with nations which cannot pay the interest, much less the principal, upon the debts incurred in the last war."

Connally of Texas took up the argument for repeal Wednesday, and Vandenberg of Michigan followed for the opposition. Thus the debate continued, probably to last at least two more weeks. Those favoring embargo repeal claimed 56 "sure" votes, as it began, anti-repealers 31.

* * *

Cash or Credit?

Pittman's bill, besides repealing the arms embargo, would: Require belligerents to take title here to all goods bought in the U. S., and to carry them away on their own or other non-American ships; allow them only 90-day credits; keep Americans off ships of warring nations, and U. S. ships and citizens out of combat areas; empower the President to bar foreign submarines and armed merchantmen from U. S. ports.

Senator George Norris, urging repeal of the arms embargo: "England and France (are) fighting with their backs to the wall. . . . It is fortunate, therefore, that in following our legal rights . . . we are able to enact a law which will more likely keep us out of the war and at the same time puts us on the side of humanity and civilization."

BUSINESS WOMEN'S WEEK PROCLAIMED

Public Relations Dinner Ties In With National Celebration; Many Events In City Signify Feminine Accomplishments.

By FRANCES E. GENSLEY

"GO AND get the local angle," the city editor cries a dozen times a day to his reporters. Certainly this week there will be no difficulty in getting the local angle on events in this city for topping the list of things to do from Oct. 8 to 14 is the celebration of the Mansfield Business and Professional Women's public relations dinner at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

This event, for which Mrs. Agnes Dickinson, Columbus attorney will speak on "A Hundred Years of Women's Progress" will be held Wednesday evening and coincides with the celebration of National Business and Professional Women's week from Oct. 8 to 14.

It was 20 years ago that the national organization had its beginnings in New York when the national board of the Y. W. C. A. called together 100 representatives of various business women's groups. The Ohio federation was started in 1920, and the local group took form in 1924.

The late Miss Jeannette Hedges was the first president, and Mrs. Marvel Cowell is now serving in that capacity. The glee club, which plays an important part in the entertainment of the club, and which has given several concerts in the past, was organized in 1926 with Miss Myrtle Booth as director and Mrs. Wilhemene Marks Cahall, pianist.

Among the things done by the organization is the establishment of the Eva Miller Scholarship fund in honor of the first scholarship chairman, Miss Miller, the presentation of Edgar Guest, the Tony Sarg Marionettes, and a variety of guest musicians.

Miss Minnie Laudon is now serving her fifth year as chairman of the Florence Allen scholarship fund, and represented the local organization this summer at the biennial convention of the national organization. District and regional conferences have been held here, and members have served on the state board at various times.

Arrangements for the Oct. 11 function are in charge of Lena Colgan, Rachel Secrest, Clara Miller, Mrs. Cahall, Mabel Torrence, Georgiana Chidsey, Mary Kolb, Florence Young and Ethel Wirts.

The week was proclaimed here by Mayor Claude M. Hunter, and for the state by Governor John W. Bricker.

Mrs. White Plans Return Tuesday

Do you happen to remember Mrs. Herbert White who spoke before the Federation last winter? If you do, you recall how delightfully she contrasted customs of the United States and the Scandinavian countries. Well, she's coming up from Columbus on Tuesday for the Guild of the Central Methodist church. She'll speak in the auditorium of the church at 8:15 p. m. on the most recent developments in Europe as she noted them during her visit last summer.

Mrs. White, who personally is a jolly, delightful woman, speaks entertainingly and authoritatively, and, if you are very good she may give a recipe for mouth-watering Danish foods.

Certainly an example of the strides women have made in the world are testified to by the active political organizations of this city and all other communities. Wednesday the workers and chairwomen of the Richland County Republican Women will continue their campaigning with emphasis on the social aspect. The entertainment will be a tea at the Mansfield-Leland hotel between the hours of 2 and 4 p. m.

This affair will celebrate the first anniversary of the organization, and Katherine Kennedy Brown, national committee woman, will be guest speaker, and Mrs. E. D. Gibson is in charge of the program. Committee members are Mrs. Zelma Darling, Mrs. Velma Alderson, Mrs. Della Cochran, Mrs. Irene Hines, Mrs. Frank Mitchell, Mrs. Nellie Carroll and the following women from Shelby, Mrs. William Morris, Mrs. Ralph Carroll, Mrs. Betty Doehla and Mrs. Willis Rhoer.

Tour of News-Journal Planned By Clubs

Fancy work, recipes for apple butter, and church socials may have comprised the "world of women" once, but today they are actively interested in the how and why of everything from diesel engines to petit point, senate committees to South Sea Islanders. Two of the more curious organizations intend to see what makes a newspaper on Saturday of next week.

Members of the Little Flower and the Notre Dame Study clubs will be taken on a tour of inspection of The News-Journal plant in the afternoon following a Towne House luncheon.

And of course the field of women has always been matrimony, and two Mansfield girls are entering upon careers as homemakers Saturday. Miss Dorothy Selby will become the bride of Jack Davis at 2:30 p. m. at the First Christian church, and Miss Jeanne Gale will exchange vows with Ralph Lang at St. Peter's Catholic church.

Group Elections Interest Several

Elections will be an important part of next week's meetings. Members of the Legion auxiliary will conduct the voting on Monday night. Figuratively members of the Joan of Arc circle of the Daughters of Isabella will go to the polls when they meet in their club rooms for a covered-dish dinner and business meeting on Tuesday.

Mrs. Marie Lomax will entertain members of the Chautauqua circle at her Reba avenue home when they hold election Thursday.

It is with considerable thoughtfulness that I regard the coming week. Women have made amazingly rapid strides in the business world and professions since the early days of the suffragists. The items I selected for special comment show perhaps in a quiet but significant way the real and lasting accomplishments of women—the fact that I sit before a typewriter and write about them for you is in itself indicative of the place woman has made for herself.

In addition to the affairs of which I have written, many other important ones are planned for the coming week. Regular meetings of various organizations throughout the city are noted in the Schedule of Events which appears regularly on this page.

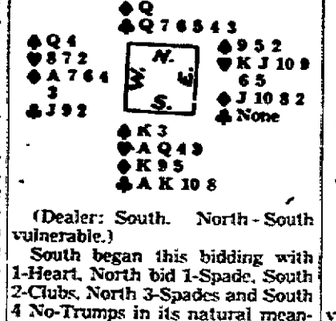
"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T BE TOO HOGGY

Even if you are a much better player than your partner, you will seldom do better in the wrong contract than he will in the right one. Going to extreme lengths, to try to become declarer yourself, can cost you a loss of many a game and slam which your partner could have made if you had given him a chance. Except in truly close questions, it is not generally profitable to stress the bid which makes you declarer instead of him.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South began this bidding with 1-Heart, North bid 1-Spade, South 2-Clubs, North 3-Spades and South 4 No-Trumps in its natural meaning, as the side was using no particular slam conventions. The conservative bid at this stage would have been 6-Clubs, but North was so anxious to play the hand, rather than let his less experienced partner do it, that he made a third bid of his suit at 5-Spades. South taking it to 6-Spades. Had North made the proper call of 6-Clubs, instead of 5-Spades, South would have taken his choice between 6-Clubs and 6-No Trumps, either of which would have been a cinch.

At 6-Spades, a diamond was led to the Ace and a club returned for a ruff, beating the contract.

It Can Happen Here!

Because disaster has never knocked at your door, is no sign or reason that it never will. BE PREPARED FOR THESE EMERGENCIES . . . Your property need not be a total loss, if your insurance is adequate. Think of the fact that there is a fire in thousands of homes daily . . . that it's always the result of an "accidental" cleaning fluid explosion, curtain catching fire from the stove, or cigarette. Remember that you owe it to yourself and others to be adequately insured and also remember that "IT CAN HAPPEN HERE."

French and British Expect Hitler to Launch Heavy Offensive Soon.

temptibles" they were called and called themselves, because the German high command had seen fit to cast aspersions upon Britain's "contemptible little army."

Thus it may be assumed that there are now at least 200,000 British Tommies fighting side by side with the French along the Maginot line. Those fortifications are believed comfortably to accommodate something in the neighborhood of 1,500,000 men.

These troops are opposed by at least 60 German divisions, being massed for the most part in the Karlsruhe-Trier (Treves) sector.

Informed British circles point out that in his recent neutrality guarantees, Hitler significantly failed to mention Luxembourg. This, the British believe, may have been an intentional oversight.

By resisting the temptation to attack while the Germans were pre-occupied in Poland, General Maurice Marie-Gustav Gamelin, commander-in-chief of the Allied armies, is believed to have placed Hitler in a dilemma.

"In his speech yesterday," a spokesman said, "Hitler said he was awaiting with confidence an Allied attack in the west.

"Actually, he cannot wait for any such eventuality. He has been deprived of initiative. His one hope of regaining it must be an attack."

Cincinnati Resents "Sore Arm Talk," Expects to Win

By GAYLE TALBOT

CINCINNATI—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds, as they go into the third game of the 1939 world series today, surrounded by the adulation of their own supporters, are a little tired of hearing about the sore-arm and ailing Yankee pitchers.

* * * * *

Red Ruffing held them to four hits in the opening game and beat them, 2 to 1. He said he had a splitting pain in his right elbow every time he delivered the ball.

* * * * *

Monte Pearson gave the National leaguers only two blows in the second bout—shut them out 4 to 0. It was a beautiful performance in every sense of the word. But it turns out that Monte, too, had been sporting a sore arm most of the season, and was in there pitching on nerve alone.

And now, today, the Reds are up against another casualty—Vernon (Lefty) Gomez. Lefty hasn't hurled a lick in the last two weeks. He has a wrenched muscle in his right side, which makes pitching an agony and forces him to wear sticking plasters over the sore spots.

"I'm weary of hearing that stuff," said one of the most prominent of the Reds. "Sure, they're good. They've knocked our ears down twice. Maybe they're even wonderful. But I'm a little disappointed when Ruffing has to build up his alibi beforehand, and then sticks to it after he's pitched that kind of a game. If that guy had a sore arm, I'm Cleopatra, and I never saw the Nile in my life."

* * * * *

Ruffing was duly ruffled when he heard this doubt had been expressed. He offered to compare his arm to any man's, blue area against blue area, and said he would bet that he had the sorest salary wing in Christendom.

What the Reds feel, of course, is that the Yankees are rubbing it in. They don't mind being licked by a great team, they imply, but they don't appreciate the idea that they are bowing to an aggregation of cripples. Probably they're whistling past the graveyard, but they still insist they will win this series.

On the train from New York the Reds kept insisting that, starting today, they would begin to hit.

"Those guys are going to be playing in our park for the next three days," said Ernie Lombardi. "Let's see how well they like that. Wait until their fielders start running up those terraces."

The terraces Ernie referred to are a phenomenon peculiar to Crosley Field. About 30 or 40 feet from the fences, the ground begins to rise sharply, and from there on the fielder chasing a fly ball is running up-hill.

The Yankees investigated these grass-canopied Alps thoroughly in the course of their long workout yesterday, and Joe DiMaggio, for one, said he didn't think the footing would bother him.

* * * * *

All are agreed that the Reds must win behind Junior Thompson today if they are to have the ghost of a chance. He is their third, their last capable pitcher. Offhand, it looks like a thin, forlorn hope for the locals, and it would be a shame for such a wild-eyed, adoring band of rooters as there are in this town to have to swallow a four-straight beating from the Yankees.

Thompson is a freshman, a square-jawed, serious youngster who impressed Manager McKechnie in training camp last spring, and who came along to win 13 games against five defeats. He has a good fast ball and a sharp curve, both of which, it has been demonstrated in the first two games of the series, can curb the Yankee hitters.

IN THE RUHL BOOK

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor

CINCINNATI — Baseball's most loyal roosters reside along this bend of the Ohio river, but the usually happy Cincinnatians seemed a bit gloomy today as they trekked 35,000-strong toward Crosley field, where their red-faced Reds and rampaging Yankees were to start where they left off in New York Thursday with the cocky American league entry two games up in the current battle for world baseball supremecy.

Defeat of Aces Paul Derringer and Bucky Walters in successive games has turned the pre-series gay and optimistic mood of the Cincinnati citizenry into one that bespoke of misery.

But by looking awfully hard, a few fans who felt that the Reds still had a chance could be found here and there along Vine street. A slim one, to be sure, but a chance.

There is always a tomorrow, the Reds' rooters insisted after the first two defeats, but the tomorrows are going to run out unless "Deacon Bill" McKechnie and his boys do something about today.

"It's beginning to look tougher and tougher," one of the Cincinnati fans was heard to remark, "and that centerfield fence (ed. note— 76 feet nearer than the middle barrier in the New York yard) isn't going to make it any easier for our boys. Some of those fly balls that Craft caught at Yankee Stadium will go for home runs here."

* * *

"We've come from behind before," McKechnie stated, but the Reds' pilot, apparently is fooling only a few. The Reds never had to stage a comeback against such a team as the Yankees.

* * *

Cincinnatians Hope Miracle Will Occur.

THEY'RE full of regrets, but the Reds are planning revenge.

Rams Suffer Third Defeat

Chatterelli, Frey Lead Orrville to 33-0 Win Over Madison Before 1,200 Spectators.

MADISON HIGH'S RAMS ran into their second straight setback of the young football season last night before a well-drilled, heavy Orrville combine that displayed a powerful offense that netted five touchdowns and a 33-0 victory over the Richland county club at Madison field before 1,200 fans under the floodlights.

Two speedy and hard-running halfbacks, Matthew Chatterelli and Frey just about ran the pigskin to suit themselves—at any rate, they had it pretty well under control.

* * *

They gave evidence of what was to come in the first period when they alternated ball-carrying on a 72-yard drive that ended with Chatterelli going over tackle from the 12-yard line for the first score. He tried a pass for the point but failed.

* * *

The drive was executed behind precise blocking that marked Orrville's play throughout the game.

Early in the second period that same blocking broke Treadway, the Orrville left end, loose for a gain that took the ball to Madison's 21. A nicely-executed reverse, with Frey carrying the ball, brought the second touchdown, and Chatterelli converted with a place kick.

Orrville took to the air then, and a Chatterelli-to-Frey pass got down to the Madison four, but the Ram line stiffened and held, and Madison punted out of danger—but not for long.

* * *

Chatterelli dropped back and tossed a pass to Treadway who was cut down on the Ram two, but on the next play Chatterelli swept around end for the score. He missed a placement kick for the extra point.

* * *

The third period was still young when Frey shot a pass from the Madison 41 to Gerhart, Orrville right end, who took it on the Madison 18 and romped over. They let Frey try the conversion and he plunged across for the extra point.

With a 26-0 score against them, the Rams resorted to the air in an effort to cross the Orrville goal, but their attempt was ill-fated. The ever-present Mr. Frey intercepted a heave from Bob Matthes and raced 35 yards to score standing up.

* * *

Bilderback, the Orrville fullback, who had been spending most of the night clearing a way for his backfield mates, broke into the scoring column by plunging for the conversion for the last point of the night.

* * *

The closing period saw the only real Madison attack, and it managed to get as far as the Orrville 25, but there the visitors tightened up their defense, and Madison's chance to tally was spoiled.

However, with their morale hammered to smithereens, all the Reds had to offer today was Rookie Gene Thompson. But Cincinnatians hope a miracle will come to pass.

It may be true that the Reds can crack Gomez, Hadley or Hildebrand for some runs, but even if they do they have no assurance that the Yanks won't perform more or less similarly against young Mr. Thompson.

Regardless of how today's game results, Derringer will be in the box for the Reds again tomorrow.

The Reds believed they will do better in there own backyard. They talk about fence angles, shadows and infield bounces, but they forget to mention anything about Yankee power.

The Yanks haven't been at their slugging best so far. What's more, up to now the farther the Reds go the worse they get. The Manhattan sluggers are confident almost beyond reason, and quite enthusiastic about it all. They have won 16 out of 19 games played in the last four world series.

* * *

There is said to be no such thing as an invincible in sports, but the Yanks appear to come pretty close to it.

* * *

Perhaps McLemore Has Best Idea.

PERHAPS Henry McLemore, ace writer of the United Press staff has the best idea to combat the Yankee strength . . . a handicap. He suggests limiting the Yankees to two outs an inning instead of the customery three, making Joe DiMaggio bat one-handed, allowing the opposing batsmen to call for the kind of pitch they wanted, just as they were allowed to do in the olden days; starting the Yanks' opponents with three runs, limiting the double plays of Gordon and Crosetti to two a game and the Yankees play Berger in left field.

The majority of the burghers waited for today's game before tossing in the sponge, but standing room only sales for today's and Sunday's games took a decided drop because the Reds have been playing like a tired ball club.

As each game goes by, it looks more and more as if this writer made a bad guess on the Reds . . . but we'll have to wait and see what happens this week-end.

New London Bows to Amherst, 13-0

NEW LONDON—New London high's Wildcats dropped a 13 to 0 verdict to the Amherst high grid machine on the winners' gridiron yesterday afternoon.

Amherst, after recovering a New London fumble on its own 45, in the initial period, sent Frederick around right end and he galloped down the sidelines for the first touchdown. And Truscello heaved a 13-yard aerial to Ott for the other marker in the final period. Truscello added the only extra point on a pass.

Crestline Scores Fourth Win, 21-7

CRESTLINE—The "touchdown" twins of Crestline high, Phil Ganni and Bob Frye, broke loose again under the arcs here last night to give their club a 21 to 7 triumph over Fremont St. Joseph. It was Crestline's fourth straight win.

Coach Merle Hutson's unbeaten and untied aggregation took the lead in the early minutes of the contest when Phil Ganni romped 45 yards around right end to score standing up. Bob Frye converted from placement.

And then Frye took over the scoring duties. Later in the initial quarter he climaxed a 65-yard march by knifing through center from the six, and finished his team's scoring by crashing through tackle from the 13 in second chapter. He added the extra points from placement.

Fremont, bottled up the opening half, outplayed the Crestline club in the final period with Brenner going over from the one to score the visitors' lone marker.

Canton Boasts Strong Eleven

Largest Crowd of Season Expected at Blue Goose Field to See Mansfield Oppose Visitors.

A LINEUP packed with ex-Canton McKinley talent will be opposed by the Automotive Supplies at 2:30 p. m. Sunday when they tangle with the Neago Cafes of Canton at Blue Goose field.

Judging from the visitors' personnel, the Cantonites will offer Coach Frank McMullen's team their toughest assignment of the season.

* * *

Eight former proteges of Jimmy Aiken, formerly of Akron university and now head coach at Utah, and Bill Reed, present McKinley mentor, will appear against the Supplies.

* * *

Heading the list of erstwhile McKinley stars are Rotar and Kamp, a couple of former all-Ohio high school stars. Other ex-McKinley stars are Bango, Grusea, Zugrave, Luther, Marks and Miller.

The Supplies will have one former All-Ohioan to throw against the invaders. He is Gaylord Bucher, a guard. Elmer Dials, Mansfield end, was chosen on the second All-Ohio team two years ago.

Other outstanding Canton players are Chapaner, late of the U. S. Naval academy; Angelo, Ohio U., and Bozurich, Wayne university.

The Canton club will average approximately 175 pounds, which is virtually the average weight of McMullen's team.

McMullen stated today that his team is in splendid condition for the encounter, which will be the Supplies' third of the season. The Mansfield semi-pro club defeated the Akron O'Neils, 21 to 0, and whipped the Richwood Merchants, 47 to 0, in their other appearances.

* * *

Bleachers used by the Mansfield Braves at the Fairground last summer have been rented, and they will be erected before Sunday's game, Business Manager Fred Rizzo announced.

* * *

Expecting the largest crowd of the season, Rizzo also stated that an attempt will be made to air the World series game between the Reds and Yankees at the field.

CHAPTER XXIV

As a matter of fact, he was of the same opinion, but he couldn't bear to acknowledge himself beaten, while Fleming Stone still declared he would solve the mystery.

"A locked room," Stone said, "I must find that out! Any other puzzle I might despair of, but there must be a way into that locked room, and I must find it!"

Cornelia said they would take a long drive, for dinner stop at a little Inn she liked, and come home by moonlight. Her principal thought was the pleasure of her guests and her nephews, but she herself was glad to get away from the house for a while.

Indoors, she felt a gloom settling down over her, that might never be lifted. She hoped that fresh air and sunlight would dispel the shadows and lighten her spirits a little.

* * *

Cornelia missed her brother in so many ways. The mystery of Harley's death, the horror of it and the awful publicity it created were bad enough, but they could be borne better than this acute loneliness caused by his absence.

Bravely, she laid aside her own feelings, and made herself entertaining and even amusing while out driving with Yvette and the others.

Stone and Assistant District Attorney Sutton sat down in the office to have a talk over the case. The room was large and held all Madison's business papers and letters, while at the other end, easy chairs and bookcases proclaimed it a study.

"Has it ever struck you?" Sutton began, "that we seem to have left Everett Ames out of consideration?"

"As First Murderer?"

"Yes. He can be said to have motive——"

"Hold hard, there, Sutton. Ames has no motive except a possible legacy from his employer, because of long and faithful service. And, he knew he would not receive that, for Mr. Madison tore up and burned his will in Ames' presence."

"I know. But I think, and I rather guess Ames thinks that the three heirs will see to it that he gets some recognition for his good works, and he might have decided to hurry matters along."

"I admit a possibility. But it was a mighty uncertain motive, for the surviving Madisons might not feel disposed to give him more than a decent honorarium. Also, how did he get in the room?"

"If any one asks me that question again, I shall fly the coop! For your information, I will say frankly, that I don't know how he got in, nor how anybody else got in. Nor, may I add, do you."

"Quite right, but I am going to find out."

"And then you're going to tell me. Well, do be quick about it."

"I shall try to be. And, by the way, I think I have a new idea. A sudden inspiration. What do we want to find out?"

"How the murderer got into and out of Harley Madison's room, finding and leaving the door locked."

"Now, consider——"

But there was no considering done, for Elkanah, Hetty's husband, came into the room, and with terror in his voice, he said:

"Oh, please, Mr. Stone, please come and look at Hetty. She is dying. I'm sure she is! Come, come!"

"What is the matter with her?" asked Sutton, trying to calm down the frantic man.

"Must I tell you?" Elkanah wrung his hands and looked somehow ashamed.

"Of course, you must," Stone said: "what ails Hetty?"

"Well, then, "the wretched man groaned, "she is—she is—drunk!"

"Nonsense! Hetty drunk? Impossible! Come on, both of you!"

Stone started and then stopped so that Elkanah might show them the way to Hetty's room.

They found her, stretched on her bed, in a stupor. As they watched, she half waked, and cried out in thick, mumbled tones, "Only a hairpin! Just one little, little hairpin! Oh, my God!"

Then she slept again. Then woke, babbling. "A coffin," she moaned. "A blue coffin!"

Gathered round the bed were all the women servants of the house, and back against the wall were several of the men.

Hetty woke again, and began to scream. Fleming Stone took the helm.

"Clear out of here, all of you," he ordered; "except, the ones I name. You are Jenny, aren't you? Miss Madison's maid?"

"Yes, sir."

"You seem cool and clear-headed. Stay by Hetty. Wilkins get a doctor. Any doctor. Is there one in the village?"

"Yes, sir; Doctor Bascom."

"Get him, then, the quickest way you can. Elkanah, you go in some other room and stay till I come to you. But first, all of you, does any one know what Hetty has been drinking or where she got it?"

"It's my afternoon out," Wilkins said, "and I was getting dressed to go out, when I heard some one in my pantry, and I went in there and found Hetty coming out, stumbling and falling about. What she had taken, I don't know, but perhaps I can find out by looking over the bottles. She never did such a thing before!"

* * *

Hetty continued much the same. She would sleep heavily, and then wake, and groan in agony, and then give a piercing scream and collapse back on the pillow. Jenny was deft and helpful, but she could do little for the sufferer.

Bascom was in New York, so Wilkins had to fetch Dr. Willis from a neighboring town, and before they arrived, Hetty had gone into a coma, from which, many of them felt, she would never awaken.

Nor did she. When the strange doctor came, Hetty Garson was dead.

Elkanah, wide-eyed and staring, wailed in distress:

"I could smell it on her, that strong! Oh, the disgrace!"

Doctor Willis made a brief examination of the body, asked a few questions and then telephoned for the Medical Examiner. Fenn, much surprised at being called again to Silver Hall, came at once.

"This woman did not die from the effects of alcohol," he said. "She was poisoned."

"Not drunk?" quavered Elkanah's thin voice. "My Hetty never drank spirits. But why would she take poison? I don't understand."

Fenn was shocked at the frightened, trembling man before him.

"We don't know that she did take it of her own will, Garson," he said. "Somebody may have given it to her, by mistake or—purposely."

"No, sir! Nobody ever killed my Hetty a-purpose. If poison killed her, then she took it herself—thinkin' it was some proper medicine."

"That may have been the case," Fenn agreed, "but anyway, Elkanah, don't think for a moment that your wife was intoxicated."

"But I smelled her breath, terrible strong."

"It may be she felt ill, and took a swallow of something to relieve it, but no more. How happens that she was lying down?"

"She said to me she felt mighty tired after cleanin' the room Mr. Madison died in. I said, 'You go take a nap and get rested up,' and she said she'd do that."

"Y-yes, but I imagined I smelled brandy or somethin' like it."

"About what time was that, Garson?"

"Musta been 'bout ha' past two, I should judge."

"And when did you see her next?"

"Long about ha' past five, I was down in the workshop mending a chair leg, and Wilkins came after me and said to hurry upstairs. So I did, and there was Hetty, out of her head, and groanin' and mumblin' like she was crazy. I tried to quiet her, but she only cried and moaned. Then, of a suddint, she started a string o' talk, as it might be a mad woman! Yappin' about a hairpin, a little teeny weeny hairpin."

"An invisible hairpin?" said Fenn.

"Invisible to her, anyway. She kep' pokin in her hair to find it,"

"Did she find it?" asked Stone, suddenly interested.

"No, sir. There wasn't no hairpin, you see, it was jest her muddled brain, thinkin' there was."

"We can do nothing until after an autopsy. Mrs. Garson, we must take your wife's body away for a post mortem examination."

Fenn then called the hospital, and Stone was left alone with Willis.

"I'm a detective," Stone said. "and I'd like to look for that little hairpin, if you don't mind."

"A clue?"

"It might turn out to be that."

THEATERS

"THE Grapes of Wrath" has gone into production at 20th Century-Fox and most of the characters have been cast, although there are still a few minor ones missing. Eddie Quillan was added this week, and will play the role of Gonnie, the deserting husband of Rosasharn. Henry Fonda plays the leading role of Tom Joad with Jane Darwell in the sympathetic and heroic role of Ma Joad. Dorris Bowdon, unknown to screen audiences, plays Rosasharn. Charlie Grapewin gets the humorous, sometimes earthy, but always tragic role of old Grandpa Joad. Others already cast are Russell Simpson as Pa, John Carradine as Casey, and John Qualen as Mulie, the stubborn dustbowl victim who staunchly refused to migrate. John Ford will direct it.

"Beau Geste."

A gallant love story, that of three brothers for each other and each for a lovely lady who had given them love and devotion in their orphaned boyhoods is told in "Beau Geste," Ohio theater attraction. A famous jewel is stolen and each of the three brothers confess to having stolen the jewel alone. The mystery is not solved until a fort on the Sahara desert is vanquished by natives. When a French Foreign Legion detachment approaches the fort, a trumpeter finds the fort manned by dead men, and in the hand of one of the men is a letter to Scotland Yard which solves the mystery. Gary Cooper, Ray Milland and Robert Preston are the Geste brothers.

* * *

"Fifth Avenue Girl."

Tim Holt, son of Jack Holt, has made such rapid progress in his movie career that he is now playing opposite Ginger Rogers in "Fifth Avenue Girl," which opened at the Madison today. Young Holt had his first major role with Olivia de Havilland and George Brent in "Gold Is Where You Find It," just a season ago. Miss Rogers is cast as the out-of-a-job stenographer who goes into a millionaire's home through chance to straighten out his unhappy family affairs. Walter Connolly is the millionaire, Veree Teasdale his wife, Kathryn Adams his daughter, and Holt is his son. James Ellison has a romantic lead as the chauffeur.

"Daughters Courageous."

Although with the same cast as "Four Daughters," this is not a sequel to that first box office hit which starred the three Lane sisters. "Daughters Courageous" shows the four daughters fighting for their mother's happiness, which involves, not a return to their father, but a marriage to an old sweetheart. Besides Priscilla, Rosemary and Lola Lane, there is Gail Page as the fourth daughter. This is on the Ritz bill for Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, along with "Stronger Than Desire," which has Virginia Bruce and Walter Pidgeon.

"Dark Victory."

For its Sunday and Monday program the Majestic offers a picture which thousands of film devotees believe will win a third academy award for Bette Davis and may be named the "best" picture of 1939. It is "Dark Victory," one of the best of the Bette Davis pictures. George Brent plays the doctor in this drama of a woman's fight for happiness for the little while she has to live. A charming newcomer, Geraldine Fitzgerald, makes her bow, and Humphrey Bogart has a sympathetic role. The second attraction is "Hard to Get" with Dick Powell and Olivia de Havilland.

* * *

"Five Came Back."

Another one of those program pictures that turned out to be an emotional wallop is "Five Came Back," which the Park offers for the first half of the week, starting tomorrow. When a big transport sky ship is forced down in the jungles of South America, with 12 persons aboard, it is found that only five passengers can be carried if the plane is to lift. And just as savage native "head hunters" surround the little group, the fortunate five are selected. Chester Morris, Lucille Ball, Wendy Barrie and Kent Taylor have the leading roles. Also booked is Lupe Velez in "The Girl From Mexico."

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, Oct. 8.

Sunday's horoscope, while holding promise of favorable transactions with employers, superiors and those in authority, is generally adverse and treacherous. Financially, there are loopholes for sharp practices or other fraudulent entanglements. Sudden change may surprise and prove devastating unless unusual precaution and good judgment are exercised.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy benefits through employers, superiors or those in authority, but there are tricky and hazardous situations to cope with by shrewdness, vigilance and good judgment. This is particularly probable in connection with finances. There may be a sudden and surprising upheaval of devastating force unless poise and firm balance are maintained.

For Monday, Oct. 9.

Monday's astrological forecast is a generally fortunate one, with much stirring in all walks of life. Business and personal interests are all under fine stimuli for advancement and progress, with application, industry and sound judgment playing important roles in effecting propitious and happy endings.

Those whose birthday it is are encouraged to expect a very lively and eventful year, with many happy and prosperous denouements in both business and private life. There is a firm trend toward stabilizing the fortunes and affairs through hard work, sound judgment and the definite increase of values in investments, real estate or static old matters.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Harry Underwood came into the room with his usual breeziness of speech and movement. Nellie, evidently in awe of any man connected with my father, slipped out of the door at his entrance and closed it after her, leaving him alone with Lillian and me.

She held out the plate of little cakes with a placating grin, and he helped himself liberally, for he has a decidedly "sweet tooth."

"That's better," he said when he had finished munching the goodies. "Now I suppose I'd better bring in the 'properties' and go into executive session."

"That seems to be indicated," his wife told him, and he went out of the room with a terse, "I'll be back directly," and Lillian hastily finished the explanation which had been interrupted by Nellie's entrance with the tea.

"Harry and I went over the costumes and make-up in his apartment, and we've brought back suitcases with outfits that will transform us all completely. He's bringing them back now, and then we'll decide what's next to be done."

Harry came back into the room, a big suitcase in either hand, and as he set them down he turned questioningly to his wife.

"What's the big idea—dress rehearsal, or do we go down to that restaurant more than once?"

I seized on the pronoun joyfully.

"We!" I exclaimed. "Does that mean, Harry, that you're going with us?"

"I'd like to see you two try to go without me," he said. "There'll also be two or three stout fellas in the offing, with plenty of what it takes in their hip pockets. We probably won't have any need for 'em, since this may be the pinkest of pink teas, but it won't hurt to be heeled for an emergency. But you haven't answered my question, Lil. Are you planning to go down there tonight?"

"We have to eat dinner somewhere, don't we?" she countered.

"That's the surest thing you know," he answered. "Even the memory of my third helping of Katie's chicken pie doesn't help the gnawing sesatnion within me."

"I thought so," his wife commented. "Therefore, I don't think it will be a bad idea at all to try our general effect at that restaurant tonight. Then we'll be letter perfect when the time comes."

"Makes no never minds to me," he said. "But when does the real time come?"

"Tomorrow night," Lillian returned promptly.

LEGAL NOTICE

John Nottom and Frances Nottom, whose last known place of residence and address was Route 2, Clayton, Wisconsin, will take notice that on October 6, 1939, the undersigned filed his petition in The Common Pleas Court of Richland County, Ohio, alleging that the above named defendants have or claim to have an interest in the following described real estate:

Situated in the County of Richland, in the State of Ohio, and in the City of Mansfield and bounded and described as follows: Being lot number Thirty-seven Hundred and ninety-nine (3799) of the consecutive numberings of inlots to the City of Mansfield, Ohio.

The undersigned further alleges that he and his predecessors in title have held the open, notorious, adverse, exclusive, continuous and actual possession of said premises for more than 21 years last past; that defendants, John Nottom and Frances Nottom, signed a quit-claim deed to plaintiff for such interest on or about May 13, 1939, but failed to appear before a Notary Public for acknowledgment of the signatures and did not have the same witnessed by two witnesses as required by law. Plaintiff has ever since sought to have this omission corrected, but with due diligence has been unable to find or contact said defendants, and that said deficiency is a cloud upon plaintiff's title to these premises.

The prayer of the petition is that the defendants and each of them may be lawfully notified of the pendency of this action and duly summoned to appear and answer herein, setting forth the nature and extent of their several claims in and to the real estate hereinbefore described; and that the Court may adjudge all of said claims to be illegal and void; that the plaintiff's title to all the premises above described may be quieted, and that the plaintiff may be found and adjudged to be the owner in fee simple of said premises and that the defendants, and each of them, and any and all persons claiming under them, may be forever enjoined and debarred from hereafter asserting any right, title, interest, claim or demand in, or to, said premises or any part thereof, and for such other and further relief as is proper.

That the defendants are required to answer by November 18 1939, and this cause will be for hearing on or any time thereafter.

Examine this table. It shows that $4.46 a month repays everything on a $100 loan in 30 months. The faster you pay, the less the total cost. These payments are calculated at Household's new reduced rates of 2% monthly on balances up to $300 and 1½% yearly on balances over $300 to $500. These rates are less than legal maximum, and are the same to everyone—one price to all. Only borrowers sign—no endorsers on any loan. No credit inquiries of friends or relatives.

TRADERS WAIT ALLIES' REPLY TO 'PEACE' MOVE

Leaders Drop Fractions as Market Marks Time; 'War' Shares Neglected.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Leaders backed away in the stock market today, dropping fractions to around 2 points or more.

After a fairly fast opening dealings lagged. Transfers approximately 600,000 shares.

Most traders, it was asserted, refrained from taking positions pending official declarations by the French and British governments of Reichsfuehrer Hitler's peace proposals.

In the meantime the "war infant" shares were more or less neglected although most of the day's activities centered on the steels, and these, along with the chemicals, took the worst falls.

Losers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Du Pont, Union Carbide, Allied Chemical, Westinghouse Electric, Johns-Manville, Great Northern, Pullman, Kennecott, American Smelting, American Telephone, Western Union, Consolidated Edison and Texas Corp.

In the course of the morning Wall Street was informed the British purchasing mission, now in Canada, would visit the United States after the close of the debate on the neutrality bill.

Should the arms embargo be repealed, it was expected heavy war material purchases would be made, and if not contracts for other goods would be let.

Carloadings of several railroads for a few days of last week were said to be fully as heavy as the similar period of the week ended Sept. 30, which showed a 1939 peak for all the carriers.

HITLER LOOKS TO ROOSEVELT FOR MEDIATION

in 1914, on the west, reaching to the new Russian frontiers.

Authoritative quarters suggested a reservation for Jews from Germany in southeastern Europe, where they would be free to create their own homeland.

Roosevelt, Aides Silent on Proposals.

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Officials at the temporary White House maintained silence today on indications from Berlin that Adolf Hitler would accept an armistice if one were proposed by President Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt, in close touch with the state department, presumably had full information from Secretary of State Cordell Hull on indications from Berlin that Hitler was disposed to accept him as a mediator or councilator in the European war.

No comment was forthcoming from Mr. Roosevelt, however. Upon his arrival here yesterday, he parried all questions on the Hitler address, explaining that he did not have an opportunity to hear since he was on a train during the hours it was broadcast, and at that time had no official information on the subject.

Authoritative sources in Washington indicated prior to the Hitler speech that Mr. Roosevelt would move most cautiously and slowly if events should make it possible for him to make a new effort for peace. The source said Mr. Roosevelt would have to have positive indications from both the ally and nazi camps that a peace move might be successful before he would throw the prestige of his office behind a new move to end hostilities.

Hitler's insistence that the partition of Poland is an accomplished fact and that any peace negotiators must recognize that situation made any peace move from Mr. Roosevelt a complicated problem.

Russia Sees Her Objectives Gained.

MOSCOW —(AP)— Reliable though unofficial sources said today Soviet Russia, through her deal with Germany, apparently had realized two objectives for which she might have fought on the side of Great Britain and France.

These were concessions in the Baltic and the right to send her armies into the Polish Ukraine and white Russia, areas on the Soviet side of the German-Russian frontier drawn through conquered Poland.

A British-French plan to use Soviet Russia as a base of operations in defense of Poland, these sources said, failed because of a breakdown in military talks here last August as a result of the Russian demands.

Great Britain and France, they said, had proposed sending large supplies, warplanes and troops to Russia in preparation for going quickly to Poland's aid in the event of the war which then had not started.

Poland, they reported, had argued that British and French aircraft should not be shipped to Polish territory in peacetime lest Germany be provoked.

Russia was expected to resume talks over the week-end with Lithuania and Turkey, continuing her policy of spreading her influence in eastern Europe through "negotiation and neutrality."

CHECK CHARGE

Shelby Officials Investigate Black Fork Pollution.

SHELBY — Investigation of the charges that the Black Fork north of Shelby is polluted from the city sewer farm this week were investigated by city officials after Ira Snyder, a farmer, had complained to city council at a meeting this week.

City officials who investigated the charges that a by-cut at the sewer farm was being used to by-pass the sewage around the plant said that such a thing was impossible.

Snyder had complained that he lost a horse, 14 sheep and some milk because of his cattle drinking from the river which had been polluted by the sewage, and asked remuneration for his loss from city council.

A report of the investigation will be made at the next council meeting Monday night.
